

Wastewater Treatment Plant Tours

The following Wastewater Treatment Plants (WWTPs) offer tours for school groups at no charge. These municipally-owned facilities** are wonderful teaching tools. Students, teachers and chaperones are shown how the wastewater that leaves their homes is treated and purified before being discharged back into the environment. Plants provide real-world examples of the water cycle, the need for water conservation and the care that is being taken to protect our water, and the water bound for 9 million New Yorkers.

Add a WWTP tour to your Watershed, community and environmental studies curricula.
It's sure to be a memorable field trip!

Please call the plant contact person at least one week before you'd like to come, and allow about an hour for the tour.
